

BALANCING THE SCALES OF JUSTICE

Out of the Darkness: On the Row

This Easter season, join Kaitlin Reece, Dario Ghersi and other members of Balancing the Scales in viewing Prison Story Project's On the Row and participating in a series of Zoom-based discussions on themes of redemption, forgiveness, and new life through the eyes of inmates on Arkansas' death row.

The Prison Story Project empowers incarcerated women and men to tell their stories. In 2016 they were given unprecedented access to men on Arkansas' death row just months before the scheduled executions of eight men. Their writing was curated into a staged reading, performed by actors.

There are two opportunities to watch this powerful recording and discuss in small groups with fellow Nebraskans:

Screenings:

Sunday, April 18 at 3:30 PM or Thursday, April 22 at 7:00 PM.

Each viewing/discussion will last 90 minutes.

Panel Discussion:

Sunday, April 25 from 3:30-4:30 PM

All participants are invited to join Kathy McGregor, founder and director of Prison Story Project, and other voices in death row ministries in Nebraska and across the country, for a more in-depth look at capital punishment and what it means to visit those in prison.
